An economic analyst to serve as assistant to the Deputy Chief of Counsel, who has been charged with the responsibility of supervising the preparation and trial of the I. G. Farben case. Such assistant on her own initiative and responsibility, subject only to general supervision by the Deputy Chief of Counsel, will undertake research and analysis of specific economic phases of the I. G. Farben case, specially assigned to the Deputy Chief of Counsel. This work will be done in co-operation with the other economic analysts on the staff of the Office of Chief Counsel.

Such assistant will also help prepare those economic parts of the various trial briefs specially assigned to the Deputy Chief of Counsel, which will have to be written in connection with this case, and will be called upon to analyze specific evidence relating to economic matters in order to prepare for presentation to the Court. Such assistant will also perform such other tasks and duties relating to the economic phases of the I. G. Farben case as may be assigned by the Deputy Chief of Counsel.

Assistant should be an economist; should have background in field of economic warfare; should have experience as a writer or journalist; and preferably should have knowledge of the German language.
