owned, had contracts to manufacture Army vehicles for the German Wehrmacht. Maybe from the business standpoint, that made sense ^{is} a cost-plus foreign policy on both ends. From the political standpoint, it made no sense at all; we were ~~we~~ buying military security from a seller who undermined this security in another part of the world.

TP The Consul had other ^{information} ~~information~~, too, so ~~explosive~~ ^{that} it should have ~~been~~ set off ^{explosions} in London, Washington or Paris, in particular a letter from the Frenchman who had come to Algeria to organize the corporation, ~~whose mail merely had passed through the State Department~~ ^{This Frenchman's reports to DEARBOR MICHEL} censors. ~~But nothing had been done and he~~ ^{TP The Consul} was so burned up that he ^{was} determined to speak whether or not the speech might keep him in Algeria for the rest of his career. Hence ^{his} the dispatch, which was to ~~go~~ ignored until the war was almost over, to come to light one day in Treasury investigations, ¹⁹⁴⁴ ~~the report of which was to lie buried until Carl Krauch took the stand in his own defense at the Farben trial.~~ ^{PAISED} ^{with the COMMENT} ^{BY}

TP "Regarding your requests to communicate directly," ~~the Frenchman had written;~~

¹⁹ must caution you that all letters are censored, and my letters will contain the truth 'but very often not all the truth... The situation is doing nicely... Within 3 weeks expect ~~to~~ reach a production of 20 ~~trucks~~ ¹⁵ a day, which ~~was~~ better than what our less fortunate French competitors are doing. The reason is that our trucks are in very large demand by the German authorities and I believe that as long as the war goes on and at least for some period of time, all that we shall produce will be taken by the German authorities... I will satisfy myself by telling you that...
