

the Vichy government, Gen. Franco's government, and the major corporations and cartels of Spain, Holland, and Italy.

During the '30's, he wrote apologies defending the youthful vigor of the Axis power. He is credited with being the author of the Get Tough policy with Russian, and of the reconstruction of the Ruhr as the arsenal for war against Russia.

Allen W. Dulles He is a brother of John. He has been connected with the State Department, and during the war was in Switzerland as head of the OSS. While in Switzerland, he was in close touch with the representatives of heavy industry and cartels. One of his best friends is a notorious Nazi spy, Gerhardt A. Westrick, who came to the United States in 1940 to sell Hitler's appeasement policy to American industrialists. Allen Dulles worked on the closest terms with Robert Murphy, after the war, to destroy the nature and spirit of the Potsdam Agreement.

Paul Nitze During the war he was a high official in FEA in charge of procurement.

Gustave Stolper Prior to joining the government, he was a high official with Dillon Read, General Draper's firm. While in FEA, he consistently favored international cartels. Shortly before the war ended, Nitze joined the U.S. Strategic Bombing Survey. While in Germany, he was one of the U.S. specialists who gave assurance to the German heavy industry that their interests will be protected by a bridge of Anglo-American friends. He is now Deputy Director of the International Trade Policy. Actually however, he is the brains behind the pro-German policy trying to rebuild a German heavy industry at the expense of Germany's neighbors.

James Forrestal Slated to become Secretary of National Defense. Prior to joining the government, he was president of Dillon Read, the firm of General Draper.

Robert Lovett Now under Secretary of State and since 1921 a partner of Brown Bros. and Harriman. For years he has represented German-Swedish corporations and cartels. Most of the financial deals of the Wallenbergs, the Swedish clock for German interests and cartels during the war, were handled by this firm.

Averill Harriman Secretary of Commerce in Truman's cabinet. Reported to be one of the most powerful man in Washington today. He is a partner of Brown Bros. & Harriman, and was formerly a member of the Business Advisory Council for the Department of Commerce. Since the 1920's, Harriman has been involved in the American-Silesian Corp. which is the American Corporation representing the biggest zinc and coal interest of Baron Von Giesche in Upper Silesia in Germany.

Despite the fact that the American-Silesian Corp. is registered as an American company, and despite the fact that it allegedly represents a Swiss Holding Company, the United States courts declared it to be enemy controlled and the Alien Property Custodian vested the majority control in the company as German owned. Harriman and the Anaconda Copper have been acting as trustees for the interests of the American-Silesian Corporation. In 1946, Harriman sent Philip Reed of General Motors to Germany to scuttle the decartelization and deindustrialization of JCS 1067.
