

Let us go back to 1945. On the eve of the Potsdam Conference, the White House announced a program for a balance of industrial strength in Europe. In the words of ~~some of our top leaders~~ some of our top leaders: "Last time we ~~rebuilt~~ rebuilt Germany as the industrial heart of Europe; this time any rebuilding will begin with the victims."

The State Department ~~delegation~~ delegation proceeded to Potsdam ahead of ~~President Truman's personal~~ President Truman's personal ambassador, Edwin Pauley, ~~whose staff was to join the American delegation mainly because of a long-standing disagreement between two factions of our Government.~~ whose staff was to join the American delegation mainly because of a long-standing disagreement between two factions of our Government. The first faction, led by Secretary of War Stimson, consisted mostly of ~~businessmen~~ ~~the State Department's~~ ~~former businessmen.~~ Over the years the State Department's former businessmen. The second faction included FDR, ~~Eisenhower~~ Winston Churchill, ~~Morgenthau~~ General Eisenhower, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, and finally President Truman himself.
