- Q. Doctor, I have one or two questions with respect to the industrial organizations of German economy generally. We previously talked about the law of February 1934 on the organic structure of German economy. At that time you stated that there had been some type of a transformation from the old industrial associations of the pre-Hitler period into the new "self administrative" organizations. I just wanted to ask you how many of the old pre-Hitler type chemical organizations there were and their names of those organizations.
- A. In the pre-Hitler times the official name of the peak organization of the chemical industry was called Verein zur Wahrung der Interessen der Chemischen Industrie Deutschlands, which may be translated as the Association for the Protection of the Interests of the Chemical Industry of Germany. In the legal sense it was an Eingetragener Verein, which may be translated as a registered association which means that it was a legal person in German law. The membership of this Verein was not compulsory but probably all firms of any importance were members of the Verein. ~~Chairman of the Verein had been~~ ~~myself.~~ The first representatives of the Verein came from the firms which have later on formed the I.G. men like Hoesler, Bosch, etc.
