

Re: Duties of Special Legal Assistant to Deputy Chief of Counsel

Many attorneys now in the States, either with other Government agencies or in private practice, have during the war performed special missions of a legal or investigative nature with respect to the activities of I. G. Farben. During the course of their official duties they have acquired the specialized knowledge of the activities of I. G. Farben and its principal officials.

Now that the I. G. Farben case is about to be tried, it is felt that the services of such personnel for a limited period would be very useful in the preparation and prosecution of I. G. Farben, as special legal assistants to the Deputy Chief of Counsel. The duties of such special assistants will include making special investigations and interrogations of the particular phases of I. G. Farben with which they have had previous contact; to prepare legal memoranda on the specialized fields in which they have previously handled. The work would entail a high degree of initiative without specific direction, and they would be subject only to general supervision of the Deputy Chief of Counsel.

At the present moment, certain personnel in the Department of Justice who were formerly with the Alien Property Custodians and certain personnel with the Treasury Department who were assigned to Foreign Funds Control, have had this specialized experience, and the Deputy Chief of Counsel considers it essential for the preparation and presentation of the case, to have such personnel employed for limited periods, as special assistants to him.
