FLICK CASE - REPORT NO. 9

DAILY TRIAL REPORT - TRIBUNAL NO. 4 - FLICK CASE.

EVIDENCE: At the beginning of the morning session the Prosecution called to the stand the witness Fernand Traver. Traver was a French resistance worker who was arrested by the Gestapo in early 1944. After spending some months in several different concentration camps he was finally assigned to the Groeditz plant of Mittelstahl in September, 1944. He was in the first contingent of concentration camp workers to arrive at Groeditz and was there until the evacuation. He had a clerical position which enabled him to testify in detail as to the number of workers and methods of pay. The direct examination was conducted by Mr. Stone and was completed shortly after the afternoon recess The cross-examination was begun by Dr. Kranzbuehler.

LAW AND PROCEDURE: At the beginning of the afternoon session Dr. Kranzbuehler asked the permission of the Tribunal for Defense Counsel to exchange notes with their clients during the course of a direct examination in order to be prepared for the cross-examination. This procedure was consented to by the Prosecution and approved by the Tribunal.
